

LABOR DAY HOSTS CELEBRATE HERE IN MANY WAYS

Thousands Are Attending
Different Resorts Near
This City.

ball games, motorcycle races, exhibition cavalry drills, mule races, back horse races and the maneuvers of an aeroplane fleet were the principal events of the day. Besides the officers of the Central Labor Union, Secretary Frank Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, was in the throng, as were James Short, president of the Building Trades department of the Federation, and J. Spencer, the secretary-treasurer.

The feature of the morning program was the ball game between nine of the Columbia Typographical Union and Columbia Lodge of the International Association of Machinists.

The navy and men outplayed the printers, and at the end of the eighth inning the latter had but two runs while the machinists had seven.

The Lineup.
The two teams lined up as follows:
Printers—Goucher, cf.; Sauer, ss.; Stief, c.; Ellett, 1b.; Weaver, p.; Thornberg, lf.; Reynolds, 3b.; Cooke, rf.; McKay, 2b.

Navy Yard—Jaeschke, cf.; W. Strother, 1b.; Broome, ss.; Giovannetti, c.; Thompson, lf.; Luscombe, 3b.; Morris, rf.; Chaney, p.

The machinists scored a run in the first, one more in the second, three in the third, and two in the seventh. The printers got their two runs in the seventh.

The exercises of the Building Trades council at the Benning race track gave the historic track the first animation since the race meet conducted last May, by the Washington Hunt Club Association. The grounds today took on the resemblance of a race meeting and country fair combined.

Hawkers cried their wares, cavalrymen of Troop C of the Fifteenth Regiment at Fort Myer, rallied their steeds around the track, and motor cycle riders overhauled their machines for the races of the afternoon.

On Motorcycles.
At 2 p. m. the motorcycle races began on a track in the best condition. Some of the fastest riders in the country were entered under the attraction of the cash prizes offered.

W. F. Gilmore, chairman of the general committee of the Building Trades Council, made arrangements with Captain Dean, of the Fifth Cavalry, for an exhibition drill by Troop C. This drill will be given about 3 o'clock and at 6 o'clock three of these troops will stage a Roman race, which should afford many thrills. Each man will ride standing three times.

Mule Race.
Immediately after the Roman race an old-time Missouri mule race will be held.

Following this the aeroplane fleet from College Park is expected to sail into the Benning race track grounds. Colonel Stevens, of the Signal Corps, sent a letter to Chairman Gilman this morning in forming him that the following officers had volunteered to make the flight:

First Lieut. R. C. Kirtland, Second Lieut. H. H. Arnold, H. Geiger, F. M. Kennedy, L. C. Rockwell, and F. DeW. Milling.

A tug of war, between two of the building trades' locals, is being arranged by John Mitchell, of the Amalgamated Carpenters.

Nationals Play.
The struggle between the Nationals and the Athletics drew many people to the American League Park, and more were present in the afternoon. Being an official holiday, all the Government departments were closed all day today, and the thousands of people enjoyed the second day of the public holidays. Banks remained shut and the stores and shops were closed for the afternoon, save the few that open until 12 m. and others until 1 p. m.

At the Library of Congress regular holiday regulations were observed. The building would be open, it was announced, from 2 to 10 p. m. The public library would be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. as on ordinary days, it was announced.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 2.—Thirty thousand unionists, thirty bands of music, twenty floats, and plenty of interest and enthusiasm combined to make today's Labor Day the greatest in the city's history. Marching clubs of women and girls were a feature.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—The merry-go-round piano took the place of the factory whistle with Chicago laboring men today and the picnic lunch basket was substituted for the dinner pail for thousands. The annual labor parade, which up to two years ago featured the celebration of Labor Day in Chicago, was omitted by the unanimous consent of members of the Chicago Federation of Labor and for the most part the bread winners spent the day quietly with their families.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 2.—Twelve thousand members of union labor throughout Greater Boston paraded today before 20,000 spectators, who crowded the line of march, despite dreary skies and a temperature of 56, which dropped lower when damp east winds brought from Massachusetts a dense fog.

The 3,000 motormen and conductors of the Boston elevated who recently won their strike for more pay, recognition of the union, and better working conditions, held the honor place in the line.

Labor Day Treated In Sermons by District Preachers

Labor Day was a popular topic in Washington pulpits yesterday. The dignity and glory of work were the subject of many discourses and with many pastors the relations of labor to capital, particularly in the present crisis of the nation's life, were treated.

"I believe it is necessary for laboring men to organize," said the Rev. John E. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church. "Although labor has made mistakes, they have not been more grievous than those of capital. We need a quickening conscience on labor questions and to follow more closely the Golden Rule."

The Rev. J. Lewis Harlock, of the Union Methodist Episcopal Church; the Rev. H. C. Brundage, of the Eckington Presbyterian Church; and the Rev. Charles E. Ellis, of Memorial United Brethren Church, also delivered sermons on Labor Day.

FIRST MOTOR TRUCK PARADE IN CAPITAL IS GREAT SUCCESS

Decorated Cars Draw Many Spectators to Pennsylvania Avenue.

While thousands of people thronged Pennsylvania avenue and other streets over which the machines passed, the first motor truck parade ever held in Washington took place this afternoon. Starting promptly at 1 o'clock from Scott circle, the parade, which was made up of more than three hundred automobiles, many of them elaborately decorated with flowers, flags, and bunting, passed down Pennsylvania avenue to the Peace Monument, where it doubled back over the same route to the starting point. In the parade every type of truck, from the 500-pound delivery wagon to the 15,000-pound vehicles, was represented.

Floats of allegorical subjects and smothered with flowers and bunting formed a large part of the pageant. Many of the best-known business houses in the city were represented in the line-up. The display of Gude Bros., a big truck, completely covered with flowers, was one of the most elaborately decorated machines, and excited the admiration of the spectators.

The Holmes Bakery Company had a representative line of machines from which its products were thrown to the spectators along the route, while the Potomac Electric Power Company's fleet of trucks distributed flowers, among which were concealed orders on the company for chafin dishes, pressing irons, and electric toasters.

The Loeffler Provision Company had a unique plan to feed the crowd along the line of the parade. A big float, carrying fifteen men and a big range, was used in cooking hot sausages for sandwiches, which were thrown to the spectators as the float passed over the streets.

Not the least interesting feature was "Maude," the Missouri mule, that had the place of honor on the float of J. Edward Chapman. The Old Dutch Market was the exhibit on a Wilcox truck, elaborately decorated, and if the votes of the spectators counted, this exhibit will come in for one of the big prizes.

Other interesting exhibits and floats were those of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Company, Hecht & Company, E. F. Droop & Sons Company, George C. Shaffer, and Laneburgh & Brother.

The parade was divided into seven divisions, each in charge of a marshal. At the head of the line was a squad of bicycle policemen. E. H. Johnson, a grand marshal, was next, and was followed by Jesse Cook, the assistant grand marshal.

The big aeroplane-carrying automobile truck used at the Army Aviation School to go to the rescue of injured biplanes, will be in the auto-truck parade this afternoon.

A Burgess-Wright biplane will be pulled through the streets. This biplane was injured in a flight at College Park last Friday. To give the public some idea of the inside points of hauling an army aeroplane, it was decided to put the truck in the parade and have it pull a "crippled" E. H. Johnson.

In the auto will be a number of soldiers from the Aviation School.

OBITUARY NOTES

WILLIAM M. JONES.

William M. Jones, for seventeen years superintendent of the Soldiers' Home Cemetery, was buried this afternoon in the ground he had superintended so many years. Funeral services were held from the cemetery lodge.

Mr. Jones was seventy-four years old. He served throughout the civil war in Company G, Twelfth Illinois Infantry. At one time he was left for dead on the field, but was found the next morning covered with the blanket of his captain and still alive. The wound was through the lung, but it was thought he had completely recovered from it until a few weeks ago. It was the old wound that caused his death.

Before coming here he had been superintendent of cemeteries at Richmond, Va., Florence, S. C., and elsewhere. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Ora Jones, but they had no children.

MRS. ROBERT CALLAHAN.

The funeral of Mrs. Robert Callahan, who lived more than a quarter of a century at the Metropolitan Hotel, and whose death, Friday, was the end of ten years of suffering, was held this morning at St. Mary's Church, Laurel, Md. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mrs. Callahan was sixty-three years old, and since leaving the Metropolitan, had lived on her country estate, Wine-burn Farm, in Prince George county, Md. She is survived by her husband, Robert Callahan, and three children, Robert Callahan, Jr., and Mrs. Collin McRea, of this city, and Mrs. H. G. Tyson, of Richmond, Va.

KIRKPATRICK MITCHELL.

Funeral services for Kirkpatrick Mitchell, almost ninety years old, who was at one time a prominent dry goods merchant here, and who spent the last six years of his life in the Masonic and Eastern Star Home, were held this morning at 9:30 o'clock from Spear's undertaking establishment. After the services there the body was taken to Glenwood Cemetery, where it was met by Washington Centennial Lodge, No. 14, F. and A. M., and given a Masonic burial. Mr. Mitchell leaves no children.

Davis Resigns.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 2.—Harry Davis, manager of the Cleveland Naps, has resigned his position as manager of the team, and Joe Birmingham was placed in charge temporarily.
